GLENDAL, CAL., JUNE 24, 1910

Miss Margaret Cross is filling a position with the Domestic Gas Company on Brand boulevard.

Dr. Colman, who until lately has been connected with the Glendale Sanitarium, has opened an office in the Story building, Los Angeles.

We have not yet heard of a meeting between "Teddy" and "Bill" since the former returned. But there is a telephone wire or two between Oyster Bay and Washington; it is easy to imagine that they are sometimes busy.

The "Stylus," which has just been turned out of the NEWS printery, is a fifty-page book which reflects great credit upon the senior class of the high school, that got it up. It contains some very bright outputs which promise a successful future to the responsible authors.

The death of Don C. McGavin in Los Angeles, removes a very successful young man from the scene of human activity. He and Oscar Lawler were proteges of Judge McKinley, who put both of them forward in political life and their success proved that the judge was a good judge of character and latent ability.

The Western Jubilee Singers appeared at Filger's Opera House last Friday evening under the management of Guernsey & Wilde. As they have sang to a Glendale audience before, the seats were well filled with appreciative auditors, and their music was heartily enjoyed. It was one of those wholesome and high class performances which deserve patronage.

Up to the time we go to press we have heard nothing further about that 4th of July celebration for Glendale. The committee appointed several weeks ago seem to have let the matter go by default, owing, we presume, to the illness of Mr. Leavitt, the chairman. It is certainly a matter of regret that it is impossible to arouse any enthusiasm over the national holiday.

There are rumors of an "insurrection" in Mexico, and as a sample of the effective way in which the people rule themselves in that so-called "Republic," the governor of one of the Mexican states has issued an edict prohibiting citizens from publicly discussing political affairs during the pending campaign. Has some one called Mexico the "land of the free?" If so, forget it!

REGISTRATION.

Inquiry at the County Clerk's office shows that there are 435 voters registered in Glendale City. This means that there are at least 150 more who will have to register by July 27th, or lose their right to take part in the primary election in August. In Tropic, 135 have registered in precinct No. 1, and 307 in precinct No. 2. These two precincts combined have a population about equal to Glendale City and comprise all the territory adjoining Glendale City on all sides, taking in Casa Verdugo and the sparsely settled section north and east of Glendale. It is important that voters when registering give their party affiliation, as otherwise they cannot take part in the partisan primaries.

Mr. H. E. Huntington has written a letter addressed to the citizens of Los Angeles, which is deserving of serious consideration. In this letter he points to the growth of Los Angeles and to the fact that the Los Angeles railway, with more tracks in operation than the Market street railway in San Francisco, does not earn half as much money. He deprecates the constant agitation for the reduction of rates for general utilities and expresses his belief that the impression made upon the capitalists who finance these projects will be a bad one, and result in checking the wonderful growth of this section. Mr. Huntington writes in a spirit of candor as one largely interested in Southern California, and his ideas should be given due weight in consideration of these important questions, all of which are two-sided and much more complicated than they appear at first glance.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

The direct primary law is playing a joke on the people of California. There is this to be said in its favor, that it keeps the people guessing. The best informed politician in the state can give no more valuable opinion now as to the outcome than he could a month ago. It has demonstrated another thing and that is that offices cost money and it's no use for any one to aspire to one worth having unless he has plenty of cash to spare. At present two candidates for governor are chasing over the state from town to town in automobiles. The campaign of Johnson and of Stanton, is causing the expenditure of large sums of money, much more than would have been required under the old convention system. Still we are not asserting that the choice is going to be narrowed down to these two candidates. Curry is certainly in the race and probably ahead in San Francisco. Anderson has not made any spectacular plays yet, but he undoubtedly has the backing of the railroad forces first with Curry a close second. Stanton is not sufficiently tractable for their purpose. It is quite possible that either Curry or Anderson will be practically eliminated before the August primaries and the organization give its best support to the other. At this time it looks as if Johnston had the lead, not because of his personality nor his record, for neither is sufficiently attractive to command any considerable support, but it is undeniable that many voters look upon him as the personification of a principle and would give him their support even if he might be in many ways unworthy, which he is not. His sole platform consists in denunciation of the railroad company, and is neither original nor sufficient as a guarantee of ability to administer the high office of governor. In this respect he is not nearly so well equipped as Stanton, who because of his knowledge of state affairs and his ability as a man of business and a record in the legislature which gives assurance of his independence of action. If made chief executive, appeals to those who know him as a man who has demonstrated his ability and dependableness. One thing will lose Johnson votes in the primaries which will count for considerable and that is the fact that many of those who would be glad to support him, failed to register as "Republicans" and cannot vote for him on August 16th.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

The people who have steadily refused to enthuse over wholesale schemes for reform in which the government is to play the part of a beneficent and all powerful parent, because they believe that every plan of this kind if carried into effect would tend to encourage habits of thriftlessness and weaken the individual character, can now point in support of their belief to a recent example in England, which is referred to at length in a late number of the San Francisco Argonaut. There are a number of societies over there, very similar to our fraternal organizations in this country. They collect funds from their members which are paid out in cases of sickness, accident, death and to their members who cannot secure employment. These societies have been of vast benefit to their own members and incidentally to the state, for they have encouraged the virtues of foresight, and thriftiness in the individual. It is said that these organizations have a membership of eleven millions in the United Kingdom and a capital of $500,000,000. Aside from this, like similar societies here, they cultivate the spirit of sociability and fraternity which is of itself an asset not to be measured in dollars or pounds sterling. Now comes the liberal government with its scheme for the establishment of old age pensions, and the result is already shown in the falling off in the ranks of these beneficial societies. Workingmen are deterred from joining the societies and paying into their treasuries the small proportion of wages which they receive; arguing not illogically, that as the government will soon take care of them for nothing, it is useless for the individual to lay anything aside for his own future. The same article calls attention to the report of a commission in Massachusetts appointed to look into this matter. The report shows conclusively that old age pensions do not lighten other forms of poor relief and are in no way a solution of the problem of poverty. On a large scale it is merely working out the principle that is demonstrated in the case of almost every individual who is the recipient of charity, the gift which at first may be taken with hesitancy and distaste, soon is accepted as a necessity and the demand for it grows with increasing familiarity. Practical charity organizations have come to recognize the fact that where it is possible for the recipient of charity to give something in return for what he receives, he should be required to give it. The government which gives its paternal assistance to its unfortunate members merely because they have reached a certain age, encourages habits of dependence and, thriftlessness which will insure a constantly increasing demand upon its resources. To "lay by something for old age," is a wholesome incentive to effort without which one of the forces which impels the world onward to better things, would be eliminated.

A SUCCESSFUL ENTERPRISE.

An article in our local columns tells something about Glendale's municipal lighting system, which is of interest not only to taxpayers, but to everyone who is interested at all in the question of municipal ownership. It is just a year since the young city decided to go into the electric lighting business. The company that was doing business in the municipality was not extending its service so as to furnish light and power to all who desired it, and the rate charged was considered much too high from the consumers' standpoint. In the year that has passed since the bonds were voted, every part of the city has been furnished with electric street lights and for other purposes and the rate has been reduced from 15 to 10 cents per kilowatt. The receipts are sufficiently in excess of the operating expenses to allow for the payment of interest on the bonded indebtedness, to provide a sinking fund for the payment of maturing bonds and to still leave such a surplus in the treasury that it is proposed to take up a bond which has not yet matured. In addition to this is the probability that the already low rate charged consumers will soon be reduced. It is doubtful if a better example of success in municipal ownership of public utilities, can be found anywhere. This experiment has not been a success merely because it was a municipally owned proposition, but because from the inception of the idea until the present time, the business has been managed carefully with good judgment and economy and upon the part of those in control with the sole purpose of ministering to the public welfare. Other municipalities have had the same opportunity, but have been less fortunate in their experience. One of the wisest things in connection with the business that the city trustees did, was to eliminate opposition by a fair and friendly deal with a competitor. There was no foolish antagonism to vested rights, but a recognition of the fact that the existing company had been of service in the development of the town and deserved fair treatment, which included a reasonable profit on the investment. Taxpayers will be glad to know that no additional tax rate will be levied this year for the maintenance of the lighting system. There is every reason to suppose that from this time on it will be a self-supporting institution, not a burden to the property owners, but an asset the value of which cannot be expressed in dollars and cents.

DEVELOPMENT OF EAGLE ROCK. A PROPHECY.

Glendale's neighbor to the eastward continues its ever increasing rate of improvement. New houses are now being put up on the Occidental college tract and the laying out and improvement of streets there is being carried on rapidly. Just east of the Glendale city limits the Edwards and Wiley companies are laying out streets through their recently acquired property on the southerly slope of the foothills, one of the finest residence locations that can be found in this section. This tract lies just east of Canyon Crest, the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wells. Mr. W. H. McCarroll has nearly completed a fine residence on a portion of this subdivision and Mr. E. C. Frank, the artist is building on a fine site at the junction of Sixth street and Eagle Rock road. Along the frontage of Mr. Frank's property and the other places named, the new highway being constructed by the highway commission, has been graded and will be completed in a few months at the furthest. These developments in this section and its natural attractiveness to the home builder, and the fact that the hills between Highland Park and Eagle Rock are dotted here and there with the new homes that have sprung up in the past year, point to one irresistible conclusion—within five years Glendale and Los Angeles will be joined together by a continuous unbroken chain of homes that will be built up between Highland Park and Glendale by way of Eagle Rock.

File away this copy of the NEWS and see how nearly fulfilled this prediction will have been in the year of Grace 1915!

COUNTRY CLUB ENTERTAINED AT MIRADERO.

The members of the Country Club and their ladies were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Brand at their beautiful foothill home, "Miradero," last Wednesday evening. The guests were received in the residence and about 9 o'clock adjourned to the club house, located in the canyon back of the house. Here they broke into groups, some of whom played cards or wandered about the beautiful gardens filled with rare trees and plants, and made brilliant by strings of electric lights, but the majority of them took part in the dance on the smooth floor of the tennis court, which was covered with a canvas and especially fitted up for the occasion. A three-piece orchestra furnished music and the dancing continued until near midnight, when refreshments were served and the party dispersed. There were about forty couples present and the affair was one of the happiest that has ever been participated in by the club members; host and hostess doing everything possible to minister to the pleasure of their guests.

LIGHTING PLANT UP-TO-DATE

One Year in Existence—Remarkable Showings

The lighting plant which has just been completed, had its beginning in the spring of 1909, when the trustees had estimates prepared covering the cost of erecting and operating an electric lighting system to serve the whole of the incorporated territory and to adequately light the streets of Glendale as well as to do a commercial lighting business. These estimates, as well as the experience of neighboring cities where the plan of municipal ownership has been tried, gave so much promise that an election was called for the first of June to vote upon the proposition. As this gave hardly time for the proper discussion of a matter so important to the town, the date was afterwards changed to June 22d. This gave more opportunity for bringing out the merits and demerits of the proposition and no time was lost by the adherents of either side in doing this to the fullest extent. After a short campaign that produced plenty of reading matter for both the newspapers and the public a bond issue of $60,000 was approved at the polls by a vote of 250 to 78, a sufficient majority to clearly indicate that the people of Glendale had no desire to continue as a lantern town.

After the election, one of the first matters to be taken up was the elimination if possible of competition and to this end negotiations were entered into with the Glendale Light and Power company for the acquisition of that portion of its plant lying within the Glendale boundaries. Arrangements were finally made to take over the existing plant for $23,000, and in November the city took charge and immediately began extensions and replacements to conform with the plans which had been made for lighting the town. These extensions have continued till the present time, it being during the present week that the last of this work was finished and the construction period ended. Any further construction that may be required and more or less of it will always be required in a place growing as rapidly as this will be handled by the regular operating force.

There are now lines in every place throughout the city where connections have been requested, and further lines will be built as fast as the need arises. All of these lines have been built in the most substantial manner, with a view to keeping the cost of maintenance and renewal at a minimum. Three-phase current for the operation of motors is supplied throughout the business section and wherever else the demand seems to warrant it.

In addition to the commercial service there is at present a street lighting circuit covering more than twenty miles of streets. This circuit contains at present 175 forty-candlepower tungsten lamps. Besides the lamps already installed there are 75 more to be installed immediately, making a total of 250 for which provision has been made. These when set up will be from three to four hundred feet apart, except in the business part of town and along the car lines where they will be somewhat closer. All street corners are lighted and throughout most of the town a lamp will be placed midway in the block. These lamps are the latest development in street lighting, and for residence sections undoubtedly give greater satisfaction than can be obtained for an equal amount of money with any other system. The lamps burn for about a year before renewal is necessary, and give a much whiter light than the old style carbon lamp without any of the glaring intensity of the arc lamp.

Along Lomita avenue the huge eucalyptus trees have proven themselves useful as well as ornamental by serving to support the street lamps and the wires leading to them, thus preventing the necessity for setting a line of poles along the street.

There are now about 435 consumers on the lines, with new homes building faster than ever before and older ones being wired every day for the service. New connections are coming in more than one a day, and the probabilities are that this will continue for some time.

One great improvement in connection with the lighting plant that has recently been authorized, is the cleaning up of the pole situation on Fourth street. This street, with four utility companies maintaining pole lines along it, has been more in need of deforestation than any other street within the limits, but action has heretofore been deferred because of the difficulty of getting four companies to agree on anything, let alone the expenditure of money. Arrangements have now been made, however, whereby one set of poles will be erected to serve for the joint use of all of the companies, the surplus being removed. This will take away 28 poles that now grace that thoroughfare, as well as provide more adequate service for the companies.

The operation of the plant is showing in a very gratifying manner. The volume of business has steadily increased every month since the acquisition of the plant in spite of the fact that each month the evenings have grown shorter. No difficulty has been experienced in making collections, and the books show for the first five months of operation not a cent uncollected.

Mr. J. F. Tatlow, of 1411 Oak street, is just in receipt of a telegram from the physician in charge of his son in Burlington, N. J., that owing chiefly to the incessant horrible weather back there the boy has not one chance in a hundred of recovery. The only fighting chance they have is for him to be conveyed home on his back with the physician at his side.

Mrs. Tatlow, who has been ill, is now able to care for the other two children, who have developed whooping cough. The whole family and physician are expected to arrive about June 28th.

Friends are kindly requested to refrain from visiting for a few days, as the situation is very critical.

Mrs. Jones, nervously: "Well, Mrs. Smith, here I am bothering you again. This time I want to borrow some butter, a few potatoes and some gasoline. I am ashamed to be borrowing every day from my neighbors, but I simply can't get my groceries delivered on time. It is now nearly six o'clock and my husband has been home nearly an hour. I am bothered this way every day and it gets worse instead of better. Oh, bother, such trials as these will worry my life out."

Mrs. Smith, calmly: "Yes, I can help you out. We ate dinner promptly at 5 o'clock yesterday when my husband comes."

Mrs. Jones: "Do tell me where you trade."

Mrs. Smith: "At McGillis'. However, I had the same trouble you are now having before they took off their sign. Now they call me up by phone during the morning and I always get my groceries early."

Mrs. Jones: "I suppose my people are doing the best they can, but such poor service is disgusting, and I, too, am going to begin with McGillis on the first of the month."

This is only a sample of the many conversations heard all over town.

Glendale City lost the second game of the series of eleven games, 6 to 3, and drops to 500 per cent in the column. Errors by our boys at critical stages of the game lost for us. Rice and Benson pitched for Glendale and Gonzales pitched a heady game for the Bishops, letting our men down with five hits, while Rice and Benson were slammed for eleven hits, all bunched.

ABOUT BASEBALL.

Editor the NEWS.

The writer has always been enthusiastic in clean athletics, and especially in baseball. After playing third base in a college nine for three years it is hard to get baseball out of my blood. I do like to see a good game of baseball. In this connection I would like to offer a suggestion or two. To the club: Let there be less contention. Abide by the rulings of the umpire, and keep sweet and play ball. To the people: Applaud your club and give it all the encouragement possible, but do not make a practice of insulting the visiting umpire and every member of the visiting team. Give the "square deal" whether the visiting club and umpire do or not. If these suggestions are followed I believe the game will grow in favor in our community. If there are many repetitions of last Saturday there will soon be few people to attend or support.

A Queer Phase of Hypnotism.

The technique of phreno-magnetism is this: When the subject is in the hypnotic sleep the operator, standing behind him, places the tips of his fingers upon the subject's head and waits. Soon the subject will begin to act or sing or speak. Any one acquainted with the phrenological system of localization will recognize at once that the actions or words of the subject correspond to the "organ" on the head which has been touched by the operator. Thus if you touch combativeness the subject is very apt to square off and strike some one or speak of war or a drum. If you touch veneration he is very apt to lift his eyes and pray. I have heard a very eloquent sermon thus inspired in a subject who was gifted with a ready tongue. Touch the organ of color and he will speak of beautiful colors. Touch tune and he will sing or whistle. Touch caution and his face will express vivid fear. I remember that one subject startled me by shouting "Look out!" and making a leap that he could scarcely have equaled in his waking state. When I touched the faculty of caution he thought he saw a snake.—Dr. George F. Laidlaw in Metropolitan Magazine.

A Clash With Caged Pythons.

Carl Hagenbeck thus described an adventure with caged pythons: "My son Heinrich had no sooner opened the door of the cage than the four reptiles, as though by prearranged plan, flew at him with wide open jaws. One of them very nearly succeeded in coiling itself round him, but he defended himself vigorously, and I and a keeper ran to his aid, but it was some minutes before we succeeded in freeing him. Then the largest of the four fixed himself firmly with his tail on a rafter at the top of the cage and made savage bites at us. When we had thrown a sack over his head we had to secure further assistance to unloosen his tail. No sooner had we with great effort got it loose than the monster twisted itself around Heinrich's right leg and began to twine itself higher up his body. It was a life and death struggle that then ensued, but by exerting all our might we at last succeeded in tearing away the reptile and forcing it into a sack."

Literary "Ghosts."

According to a writer in La Revue of Paris, the rank and file of novelists in France draw on an average $100 for each book, and many of them are thankful to get half that amount. On the other hand, those at the top of the tree earn large incomes, and some of them undertake more commissions than they can fulfill. Recourse is then had to literary "ghosts," of whom there are plenty in Paris, willing to furnish a passable imitation of any writer's work. Popular novelists do not always take the trouble to read the books published under their names. Some years ago a "ghost" with a grievance against his employer interpolated in the book ordered from him two chapters of "Mme. Bovary," altering nothing but the names of the characters. The woman who signed the book in order to clear herself from the charge of plagiarism had to confess that she had farmed it out.

The Joke as Persia Sees It.

The "Man of Jam" was the Joe Miller of Persia, according to Charles Johnston in Harper's Weekly. "For some reason or other the 'Man of Jam' seems to have had a deep detestation of schoolteachers," says this author. "A teacher whose son had fallen ill and was at the point of death bade them send for the washer of corpses to wash his son. 'But,' they objected, 'he is not dead yet!' 'Never mind,' said the teacher; 'he will be dead by the time they have finished washing him.'"

To Bahul a certain visitor said: "Rejoice at these good tidings. The prince of the faithful has made these ruler over apes and swine." "Take my orders, then," quickly retorted Bahul, "for surely thou art my subject."

A Hindoo Superstition.

When visits are exchanged by the friends of the Hindoo bride and groom to complete arrangements for the wedding great attention is paid to omens, which are considered especially potent then. For instance, if the groom's messengers should meet a cat, a fox or a serpent they turn back and seek a more propitious time for the errand. After the bride's father has received the offer he must delay replying until one of the ubiquitous vipers in his house has chirped.

No Gossip.

"I don't like these women who gossip about others. Do you?" "I should say not. Now, there's Mrs. Green. She's always telling mean things about her neighbors. And Mrs. Hunter talks perfectly dreadful about her friends. Thank goodness, I never say anything about anybody!"—Stray Stories.

A Test of Strength.

"Doctor, have you and the consulting physicians decided what is the matter with me?" "Not yet." "But I heard you halloing this morning." "Oh, that was only a straw vote."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A memorial to an explorer is that in honor of Jean Nicolet at Menasha, Wis. It is a huge boulder of Winnebago Manitou stone, known as "spirit rock," and is mounted on a plain pyramid of sandstone twelve feet high. An inscription relates that Nicolet was the first white man in Wisconsin and that he met the Winnebago tribe and held the earliest white council with 5,000 of its braves. The monument was erected by the city of Menasha and women's clubs of that place.

CALIFORNIA BULLETIN.

Reports received by the California Development Board show great activity in all parts of the State in immigration and colonization. Railroads report greatly increased arrivals of colonists during the past two months. Large tracts of land all through the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys have been divided into small tracts and offered to colonists at such terms as induce settlement.

Increased activity is noted in manufacturing and industrial development throughout the interior, and electric construction as well as railroad extension is especially noticeable. Building activity is increasing all over the State, indicating rapidly increasing population.

Crop reports do not bear out early promise, especially in the early fruits. A wind storm prevailing throughout the northern part of the State early in the month cut down the cherry and apricot crop. Otherwise there is every indication of good crops. Hay and grain will be below normal, but late fruits, especially Bartlett pears and grapes, give excellent promise. First car lot shipments of apricots started to the Eastern market during the month. Berries are reported as being especially heavy and fine.

XI.—The Process of Breadmaking.

By EDITH G. CHARLTON,
In Charge of Domestic Economy, Iowa
State College.

Copyright, 1919, by American Press
— Association.

NEXT to milk there is no food more generally used by civilized nations than bread. To the average housekeeper there is probably no part of the regular cooking more important or worthy of her best attention than breadmaking. To be able to make a well risen, good flavored, well baked loaf of wheat bread is the goal of the young aspirant for culinary fame. One has only to attend county fairs, farmers' institutes and meetings of other organizations where pantry stores and baked goods are entered in contest to see quickly that it is in the bread that the greatest interest centers. And all this is as it should be, for bread is one of our best staple foods. With the addition of a little butter or eaten with a glass of milk, it furnishes a nutritious, well balanced diet upon which one could subsist and maintain good health for an indefinite length of time, provided one did not weary of the sameness.

With a practical knowledge of certain principles governing alcoholic fermentation as produced in breadmaking, also some knowledge of the difference in flours, and with careful at-

and this is obtained by a chemical change being produced in the starch of the flour, changing part of it into sugar. This results in a fermentation of the products of which are alcohol and carbon dioxide gas—the gas which makes the bread light. The average housekeeper is familiar with yeast or leaven in three forms—that which she makes herself by combining potatoes, flour, hop water and a "starter" left from a previous baking; also the dry yeast and compressed yeasts. The last two are practically the same, the dry yeast having been mixed with more flour or cornmeal in order to preserve the plants for a longer time. The chief difference between these three forms of yeast is in the number and kind of yeast plants which they contain. The compressed yeast—the small square cake which comes wrapped in tin foil—contains the largest number of plants and so is able to produce the greatest amount of gas in a given time, making it possible to finish the bread in fewer hours. The commercial yeasts are supposed to be what is known as a "pure culture"—in other words, one variety of plants—therefore is more uniform in strength and composition.

Yeast plants exist in the air, and it is upon these we depend in making "salt rising" bread. The flour and water with a little salt are mixed into a batter, then set aside in a warm place to ferment. It contains sufficient gas to make into dough when full of holes or when like a sponge, and this fermentation has been caused by the action of the wild yeasts in the air.

The Process of Breadmaking.
This article is in no sense an explanation of all the scientific technicalities of breadmaking because the subject is too big and complicated to be thoroughly treated in a column or two. It is simply an attempt to outline some of the principles to be observed and to give a few helpful suggestions to women who may not have a satisfactory method of their own. The following recipe is for bread made with compressed yeast, and when care is taken to maintain an even temperature, about 80 degrees, throughout the process the bread should be ready for the oven in about four hours from the time it is started. The special advantage of the compressed yeast is that it is more rapid, and when it is used bread need not be set overnight.

Compressed Yeast Bread.
Add two tablespoonsful of shortening (butter or lard), one tablespoonful of sugar and one teaspoonful of salt and one cake of compressed yeast dissolved in three tablespoonsful of cold water to one pint of scalded milk or one-half milk and one-half water. Then stir in flour until dough is stiff enough to beat vigorously. Turn on molding board and knead until dough does not stick to the board, using more flour as necessary, a little at a time. Put in a well greased bowl and brush surface lightly with melted butter to keep from crustling over. Cover with towel and let rise again until double its size (about three hours). At the end of that time mold into rolls or loaves and put into greased pans, brushing the surface with melted butter. Cover as before and set to rise until double its size; then bake.

Bread should be baked as soon as it is sufficiently light, and the oven should be hot enough to brown flour in fifteen minutes, about 300 degrees. At this temperature ordinary sized loaves of bread should be browned all over.

Bread should be turned from pan as soon as taken from oven and placed uncovered in such a position that all sides will be exposed to the air, not allowing it to come in contact with anything which will give it an unpleasant odor or taste. When cold it should be put into a box or jar to which the air can have access and be kept in a dry, cool place. This amount of yeast will raise three times as much flour and other ingredients if longer time is given for it to become light. One point in which many first class breadmakers often fail is in the baking. Bread to be thoroughly digestible should be thoroughly baked. The ordinary sized loaf requires from one hour and a quarter to one hour and a half to bake sufficiently, and that this may be accomplished without burning, the oven should not be too hot in the beginning. The bread should not begin to brown until after the first ten minutes.

Many changes take place in bread during the baking. The yeast plants are killed by the high temperature, the gas expands, making the loaf still lighter, the fermentation is stopped, the alcohol is driven off and a large amount of the moisture is evaporated. Also the browning of the crust increases the ease with which the loaf is digested, and the action of the yeast on the gluten is also supposed to aid its digestion.

Whole Wheat Bread.
Scald a cupful of milk, take from the fire and add a heaping teaspoonful of salt, a level teaspoonful of sugar and a tablespoonful of shortening. Add a cupful of cold water to the scalded milk and when the mixture is lukewarm add one-half yeast cake that has been dissolved in one-half cupful of lukewarm water. Beat in enough whole wheat flour to make a rather thin batter, beat well, cover and set aside until light. Then stir in as much more whole wheat flour as you can beat in with a spoon. It must be stiff. Beat well, turn into greased tins, let rise until light, then bake an hour in a moderate oven.

Diabetic Bread.
Take one quart of sweet milk, one heaping teaspoonful of good butter, one-fifth of a cake of compressed yeast beaten up with a little water and two eggs well beaten. Stir in gluten flour until a soft dough is formed. Knead as in ordinary bread, put in pans to raise and when light bake in hot oven.

The food of the yeast plant is sugar,

Hard to Kill.
The Hawaiian Islands have always been famed for their freedom from snakes. People and animals could wander with impunity through valleys and over hills and mountains. An importation arrived on the steamship Alameda from California that might have put an end to such delightful serenity. This was the arrival of three flimsy boxes containing fourteen large living snakes, five of them rattlers. Under a rule such animals arriving in the territory of Hawaii are ordered to be immediately destroyed or deported. "In the destruction of these snakes," says the narrator, "we had a surprising experience. I placed the boxes in one of our fumigating chambers and applied a charge of double density of hydrocyanic acid gas. The snakes were still alive at the end of fifteen minutes, whereas if they had been warm blooded animals they would have succumbed in a less number of seconds. They were again shut up, and a quadruple charge of the same deadly gas was administered. At the end of one hour and a half the fumigator was opened, and several of the snakes still showed signs of life. We then immersed them in 95 per cent alcohol. That soon put an end to their venomous existence." — Youth's Companion.

Well Placed Generosity.
In 1835 Liszt went on a tour in the French provinces. He arrived at the little town of L. to give a concert, as announced. But the inhabitants appeared to take but little interest in musical matters, for when the musician appeared on the platform he found himself face to face with an audience numbering exactly seven persons. Liszt stepped very calmly to the front, and, bowing respectfully to the array of empty benches, he delivered himself as follows: "Ladies and gentlemen, I feel extremely flattered by your presence here this evening, but this room is not at all suitable; the air is literally stifling. Will you be good enough to accompany me to my hotel, where I will have the piano conveyed? We shall be quite comfortable there, and I will go through the whole of my program."

"The offer was unanimously accepted, and Liszt treated his guests not only to a splendid concert, but an excellent supper into the bargain. Next day when the illustrious virtuoso appeared to give his second concert the hall was not large enough to contain the crowd which claimed admittance.

The Diagnosis.
The disastrous results of interference by relatives in the course of courtships was well exemplified in the case of a young Baltimore couple not long ago. They had been engaged for some time when it became generally known that the affair was at an end.

"What was the trouble, Jack?" an intimate friend asked the youth, who, by the way, is a recent medical graduate.

"Well, as it was nothing relating to Nan personally, I don't know why I shouldn't tell you," he replied, with a sigh.

"I suppose it was some outside influence—you seemed to fairly dote on her," the friend commented.

"I did," the dejected lover replied. "She is the sweetest little girl in the world, but terribly fond of her relatives. Her old maid aunt from Kansas came along the other day and announced that she was going to live with us after we were married, and—well she proved an antidote." — Detroit Free Press.

The Chinese Way.
In its wars with England and France in 1859-60 China was easily conquered and forced to a humiliating peace. The Pekin Gazette, the official organ of the government, however, reported the following concerning that treaty of peace:

"As the western barbarians have admitted their wrongs and humbly solicited for peace, the emperor in his infinite goodness has granted their prayer and, moreover, has made them a present of a large sum of money (indemnity of war) to enable them to begin a honest life, so that they may not again be driven to murder and rapine."

A Joker Among Birds.
The bluejay is a practical joker. It is his habit to conceal himself in a mass of leaves near the spot where small birds are accustomed to gather and when they are enjoying themselves in their own fashion to suddenly frighten them almost to death by screaming out like a hawk. Of course they scatter in every direction, and when they do so the mischievous rascal gives vent to a cackle that sounds very much like a laugh.

The Real Test.
"My husband is the kindest man—lets baby break his watch or pull his mustache and never scolds it at all." "But did the baby ever get hold of one of his pipes? That's the real test." — Buffalo Express.

The Work of Time.
"And to think," sighed the man who was trying to find a belt which was long enough to be buckled around him, "that the boys at school used to call me Skinny!" — Chicago Record-Herald.

He Gave It.
The Girl (rather weary, at 11:30 p. m.)—I don't know a thing about baseball. The Boy—Let me explain it to you. The Girl—Very well; give me an illustration of a home run—Life.

Simplicity is, of all things, the hardest to be copied.—Steels.

Miss Evalena Ayers and Cover C. Melrose, both popular young people of this place, were secretly wedded at Santa Ana on the evening of June 11. Before leaving this place both young people stated that they were going to Long Beach to visit some friends, but instead of boarding a Long Beach car accidentally (?) took a car going in the other direction and in the course of a few minutes found themselves in the flourishing city of Santa Ana. Without delay they secured the marriage license and were married at the court house. Upon their return home Sunday evening they denied stoutly that they were married and even that a license had been granted them, and to turn their friends farther from the truth Mrs. Melrose went so far as to return to her position in the office of the Domestic Gas company of Glendale, still being addressed as "Miss Evalena Ayers."

Several of her friends were not quite satisfied that she had not been married and as their marriage license was in the Los Angeles Times as coming from Santa Ana, they ran out there to investigate. As they had half expected they found that the young people had been married on Saturday evening. When confronted with the facts as gleaned by their friends who had gone out to Santa Ana and through a letter which the writer had received, they admitted and are now traveling peacefully along under the title of Mr. and Mrs. Melrose.

Mrs. Melrose's parents were not aware of their daughter's marriage until after the investigator returned from Santa Ana, and disclosed the truth. It is stated that Mr. and Mrs. Melrose will soon go to Mexico, where Mr. Melrose will secure employment.

Mrs. Mary E. Clay, mother of C. E. Clay of 1517 Ivy street, left for her home in Utah last Sunday. Mrs. Clay, although past 70 years, makes a yearly trip to Glendale, and were it not for the fact that her business interests are all in her home town, would probably make her home here.

Miss Alpha Cochran and Mrs. J. Haynes of Los Angeles, and Mrs. C. E. Clay of Glendale, expect to leave next week on a visit to their mother, Mrs. J. H. Cochran, of Provo, Utah. They will remain away about two months.

A certain young man of West Glendale is minus a bicycle, and would like very much to have it returned. He is in the habit of sleeping on the front screen porch and leaving his bike at his side, in case he should want to take a joy ride in the night. But while sleeping the sleep of the just, some one walked up and took the bicycle without saying please. The young man is thinking of hiring the officer who watched so carefully over Hendrick's store to keep him awake after this.

WHITAKER-EYRE.

Popular Young Couple Married at St. Marks.

St. Marks church last Friday evening opened its doors to a wedding party which filled it with interested spectators in the persons of a large number of invited friends of Mr. Reginald Whitaker and Miss Frances Eyre, popular members of the church and of Glendale society.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the green of plumosa blending harmoniously with roses, Shasta daisies and the flowered stocks of yucca from the near hills. Over the chancel hung the wedding bell, skillfully contrived of greenery interspersed by white daisies, with a pure white magnolia flower for clapper. At 7:30 guests from out of town arrived on the Pacific Electric cars and filed into the building, followed by the other guests who were ushered to their places by Mr. J. W. Penn.

Mr. Charles Elliott Anderson was at the organ and rendered selections of high class music preceding and during the ceremony, which added much to the impressiveness of the occasion.

At 8 o'clock, the minister, the best man and the groom entered from the side door to the altar and at the same time walking slowly to the strains of the wedding march, the bride and her attendants moved up the aisle. Miss Minnie Eyre, sister of the bride acting as maid of honor, gown in pale blue silk, carrying sweet peas and maiden hair ferns. The bridesmaid, Miss Ina Whitaker, sister of the groom, was dressed in pale yellow silk with hat to match and carried Shasta daisies and ferns. The bride followed accompanied by her mother, Mrs. William Mitchell, gown in cadet blue silk. The bride's dress was dainty embroidery over silk, her veil of Brussels net fastened with orange blossoms and her bouquet consisting of white roses and maiden hair ferns. While under skillful fingers the organ emitted soft strains of harmony, the minister, Rev. Dr. Trew, read the beautiful marriage ceremony of the church, the ring was placed and the responses given and with a benediction the ceremony was complete. The ushers were Messrs. Humphrey Woodcock, Gaston Ganahl, J. Walter Penn, Mr. W. Prosser Penn was best man.

After the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, "Casa Loma," where the numerous presents consisting of many pieces of cut glass and a quantity of silverware and other tokens were displayed.

The groom is a graduate of Berkeley and holds a position in the office of the city engineer in Los Angeles. He has lived a number of years in this section with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Whitaker of Ninth street. The bride has been a resident of Glendale for the past five years. The young couple left after the reception for Santa Barbara where they expect to remain a fortnight and afterwards will spend some time at the beach, expecting ultimately to make their home in Glendale.

THE WALTON-HENDERSHOTT NUPTIALS.

An unusually pretty and impressive wedding ceremony occurred in the Methodist church at 8:30 Wednesday morning when Miss Mary Frances Hendershott of this place and Frank J. Walton of Crescent City, were united in marriage. The simple ring ceremony was used, being performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. J. F. Humphrey.

Shortly before 8:30 Mrs. G. H. Moyse started very softly to play the Lohengrin wedding chorus and soon after the P. E. O. octette entered from an adjoining room singing the Lohengrin bridal chorus. When the octette had taken its place at the right of the altar, the bride, accompanied by Mrs. Roy L. Davis of Riverside, moved down the left aisle, while the groom, accompanied by Mr. Roy L. Davis and Rev. Humphrey, approached the altar down the aisle on the opposite side of the room. Immediately after the ceremony Miss Lillian Ward rendered the organ Trauerchor by Schumann, and while the bride party were leaving the church, followed by the guests, Miss Ward played the Mendelssohn wedding march.

The decorations of the edifice were done by the ladies of the P. E. O., assisted by several friends of the bride. The altar was a bank of ferns and daisies and the pulpit was almost covered with magnolia blossoms, daisies and ferns. Above the young people as the ceremony was being performed was a bride's veil made from a large yucca in full bloom. The ladies in charge are due great credit for the work performed.

Miss Hendershott was one of the foremost young ladies in this place. She was unusually popular. Her most pleasing personality made friends of all whom she might meet. For eight years she has been teacher at the Fourth street grammar school and for the period has been a member of the P. E. O. society and also of the Methodist church, in which she has been an active worker, being at this time vice-president of the Sunday-school.

Mr. Walton is a wealthy ranch owner of Crescent City, and is highly respected there.

KEEPING IN TOUCH WITH HOME

IT IS WONDERFUL HOW MUCH SATISFACTION CAN BE OBTAINED FROM A TALK OVER THE BELL TELEPHONE

A letter carries words, but the Bell Service has been brought up to such a point of perfection that the modulations of the voice are clearly heard.

The cheery tones show that the talker is well and in good spirits. The call may come from a suburban village or a distant city, but within the limits of the carrying power of the voice the Bell Service carries the tone as well. You get a personal interview with a friend hundreds of miles away.
